

Chris Ladwig is the Director of Environment, Health, Safety and Security with global responsibility for all Spirit locations. He is tasked with leading Spirit's EHS commitment to conduct business in a manner that protects the environment and promotes the health, safety and well-being of employees and surrounding communities. Chris has been in this role since February of 2015.

Prior to joining Spirit, Chris has held multiple leadership positions in the EHS field with General Electric, Procter & Gamble, Cree, and Hawker Beechcraft. Chris holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Occupational Safety & Health from Murray State University, a Masters of Science degree in Fire, Security, & Emergency Response from Eastern Kentucky University, and a Masters of Arts degree in Business Administration (MBA) from Ohio University.

Chris lives in Derby, Kansas with his wife Beth Ann and their four kids Ava Grace, Bryson, Ethan, and Jacob.